

CONNECTATHON

HEALTHCARE VS. FINANCE "THROWDOWN"
2019

Mark Gidman

Mark is a technology strategist and software team leader. He currently serves as the Chief Technology Officer at Juxly, a leading developer of SMART on FHIR applications.

With experience in both large scale, enterprise grade systems and leading-edge technology platforms, he has helped deliver breakthrough solutions in philanthropy, insurance, and healthcare since 1997.

Mark specializes in identifying the key integration points of existing systems and strategically injecting new solutions that both extend the value of the current infrastructure and deliver the benefits of new technology options.

Whether writing code or fussing over a presentation, you'll find him in the mix, doing what needs to be done. Software development is a team sport, and Mark loves to play.
